Woman and the Press.

Upon education, by which we mean the whole training, moral and intellectual, depends the safety of a free people. And as upon the character of the women of any ration, its moral and religious position, its intellectual and all other ennobling characteristics rest, in a republic this is emincutly the case. There was something o the heroic and the noble in the deference which Christian chivalry paid to women-In the early days of this confederacy, a practical value was added to chivalric usone-The deterence allowed, and the respect paid to women in the United States, have been often remarked by intelligent travellers. The women of America have been tacitly treated as the chief power in the State. They have charge of the education of our children; they form the characters of our men : and in their hand rests the determination of the success or failure of the great experiment now in progress upon this con-

Women have in this country a great ad vantage, which is forfeited only by their own consent. As a sort of divinities, or at least the priestesses of social religion, they are approached only with kindness and honor, until their claim to consideration is lost. It is not accident which, in some classes of society, is depriving them of the conservative power which they have wielded to hoppily. Our fath is prided themselves upon republican simplicity; but the boast of many in this generation has been superiority to such an antiquated notion. We have sought rather the importation of foreign follies. We have commended the intellectual elevation of our women in overcoming o d-tashioned prudishness, and in looking with as much composure as any blase European upon beautiful enormities, and the elegant liberties of pseudo high

In art and literature a downward progress has been manifest. A feeling of latitude amounting, if not to licentionsness in fact, to the enjoyment of the contemplation of its phases, has been increasing. In litcrature tadies weep over and admire heroines, any one of whose traits would exclude a living woman from society, even now. Highly wrought tales and exquisite pictures of passion are presented for their admiration. Music and the drama, pen and pencil, furnish to the educated and, by courte sy, the refined, the same enjoyment which coarser tastes find in less elaborate performances

We do not charge that this demoralization is universal. There are communities in which the people are so far behind the age that they still call things by their right names; where men do not repel the suspicion of being correct in principles, lest they should be thought mean spirited, and where women do not disguise their natural disgust for licentiousness.

But even into the guiet country towns that form, so to speak, the strongholds of virtue and republican morals, the infection creeps by a thousand channels; not the least of them, the permitious sheets, full of mawkish love-stories and id disguised sensuality, which from a few unprincipled presses, flood the Inud.

The influence of current literature, periodical and other, upon the public appreciation of virtue and vice, cannot be overestimated. The press has taken a place to which almost every other social power is but secondary. We cannot go back to the obsolete machinery of censorship to control its issues; nor, if we could, would any such control answer the purpose. The tendency of republican institutions is to elevate popular opinion above all law, and to make the enforcement of the level earlier eren in its most important particulars, and those most essential to the well being of society, depend entirely upon the sentiment of the public. The great problem of gov-Frament by the people, depends upon the character of the governed. In proportion as they least need restmint, they are most willing to submit; and when the strong arm of the law is most necessary, it is discovered that there is no such thing. It is nerveless before the stronger pressure of popular judgement, or the tyranny of the prevailing fashion.

These indisances in the way of periodicale ought to be abated, says everybody. But they are no worse than many other matters, less offensive, only because less gross; and more mischievous because detended by the dangerous apology of genius. It is time that the latent strength of the nation impose a censorship, not upon the issues of the press, but upon manners and tuste.

None can do this so easily, so effectual. ly, as the women of our land; and for them to do it is simply a question of selfpreservation.

The Washington Union is about to have an accession of two mate editors. That's all right. "Bidy, did you put an egg into the coffee to actile it?"—"Yes, ma'am, I put in four, the were so dead I had to use the more of, em."

LOCAL HTTELLIGENGE.

Ms. Entros:--in your report in the Daily News on the 4th, of the long talked of Latin Exegesis by Mr. Debois, I wish to my that I a gree with you that it was a diegraceful treatment to a citizen, and I chall lenge any of the mean actors to show cause for their deeds on that evening. But I wish to correct a few errors in your report. First, you say full four-fifths. Now I want that reversed, there were not more than one-lifth who acted so, nor was there half the number of songs named, uttered in the Hall. As a citizen of Newport, I am unwilling that the city shall be disgraced for the act of a few rowdies. I believe that this is likely to make the impression on the minds of the people, that a man on account of color would not be allowed to read Latin in Newport. Now I say let Mr. Dehois come forward again, and give the people a chance to hear him and his daughter, and he will see that there is moral influence enough in Newport to frown down rowdvier. FAIR PLAY. -We agree fully with the spirit of Fair Play's communication and we hope that his corrections of our report are themselves correct, but it certainly did seem to us as if the great majority of the audience were concerned in the noise and rinting. We say it with regret, for no decent person could have been present without blushing for his native place. A former eminent citizen of Newport and distinguished Senstor used to say that he could always tell when he crossed the line from Connecticut into Rhode Island because the hoys by the road-side no longer took off their hats to old men. It would be well for this part of Rhode Island if no graver breach of manners than this could be charged upon its youth. The half-grown yahous who hang around our corners in the evening, insult passers-by with vulgar language, and disturb public meetings have every trait of the rowdy of larger cities except his brute courage. A genuine fight is about the only nuisance they are above committing.

A large class of our youth join in these affairs however thoughtlessly and without evil intention. Their exuberant spiritstoo often left untrained by parental caredo not see for the time the line which divides fun from malice, and humor from vulgarity. They are led on in the train of the thoroughly vicious, and do not see that they are encouraging these latter by their presence and laughter to do things which they themselves would hate or des, ise. If every one who went home from that diagraceful scene on Wednesday night with a secret consciousness of misconduct would only try for a little while the effect of a better example in his own person, we should soon see a better state of things. We hope that Fair Play will consent for Mr. Debois to wait for such a relimm before he trusts himself again in their hands.

MOUNT VERNON AS IT IS—By a correc-Mount Vernon? Phusingers asked each other, from time to time, but no one knew. At length, we were landed upon the rotten lanks of a pier, through the interstion of which a good sized child might easily drop which a good sized child might easily drop into the Polomac. A plank hot road of a similar description led up a gully—the picture of neglect, fit emblem of the Valley of the Shadow of Death—untrimmed trees, rotten trees, Iving where they had fillen fears ago, matted vegetation—dry and sere now—and shrubhery choking up the cassaces hetween the larger trunks. The n inisterial warning given to the Presse has created a great sensation, and rentes in consequence rose last night forty centimes. The article which led to th warning being viven contains the following passage: Italy does not rely on her own unaided efforts to throw off the yoke of he oppressors. She invites the cooperation of generous nations. Ought we not to welcome with gratitude the opportunity of putting a termination to the anxiety which torments Europe?

The correspondent of the Herald says the warning reached the Presse while it was on the printing machine, and as it contained another warlike article still more violent, this had to be taken out, and the journal did not appear until 6 30 p.m.

It was reported in Paris that Baronlinbner had threatened to demand his pass-ports if he did not obtain satisfaction on account of the above articles, and that the proposal to give the Presse a warning led to a violent discussion in the cabinet counoil, it being strenuously opposed by Prince

Sardima The Paris correspondent of the Times asserts on trustworthy grounds that the King of Sardinia is determined on making an attempt to drive the Austrians with the object of constituting for himself a king-dom strong enough to resist Austria on the one hand and France on the other, if need be, and that it will comprise Venice and at least ten million subjects.

The news from the Danubian Principalities is considered of a serious character, and in that quarter which may be more difficult to deal with than the affairs of Italy.

The Liverpool Post thus summarizes the news: The news to-day is important. The war in Oude is over. The forts have been destroyed and four hundred thousand stand of arms surrendered. The Begun and Na-na Sahib are supposed to have fled with their followers into Nepaul. Tanta Toneehas suffered three successive defeats, and in all directions the remnant rebels of the rehellion have been decimated. The Sultan remain have over decimance. The outlandist is angry with the people of the Danibian Principalities, and has a tolerably large hody of soldiers on his own side of the river, but he knows better than to commence er, but he knows better than to commence hostilit s, and, therefore, appeals to a conference of the great powers. The conference is shortly to take place at Puris. There is a dark spot in the East. There is, we are told, the possibility of a Turkish and Austrian army marching into the Danubian Principalities, in order to prevent the Houmains from becoming a muit-d neonle under Prince Course their united people under Prince Couza, their universally elected horpodar, France, Russia and Piedmont will object to this, ii. The Presse had an article or partially away, and were fallen or in which alarmed the coursell, and it was only of the empire. The Presse had an article which alarmed the coursell, and it was only after a warm discussion that a warning after a warm discussion that a warning was given. The Emperor, it is said, is desirous of emulating his nucle, and of tempting danger in the field of fight, and possibly Sardinia thinks he will, for in Piedmont the court is for a passage of arms with Austria. There hes the danger, for Piedmont, by a sudden movement, can inaugurate a European war. Austria, however, is convicous towards France.

Talk of beauty, it cannot exist without a finchead of hart, then read the following, and if you ask more, see circular around each bottle, and no one can doubt.

JEOF WOOD'S Hair Restorative.—IVe I call the attention of all, old and young, at this wonderfol proparation, which turns hack to its original color, gray hair—covers the head of the haid with a insuriant growth—removes the dandraff, itching and all entances cauptions—causes a continual flow of the natural fluids; and hence, if used as a regular dressing for the hair, will preserve its color, and keep herom falling to extreme old age, in all its natural heavy. We well then upon the bald, the grey, or discussed in scalp, to use it; and surely the young will not, as they value the flowing locks, nathe witching curl, ever be without it. Its praise is upon the tongues of thousands.

The agent for Prof. Wood's Hair Rectorative in New Haven, received the following let terin regard to the Restorative, a few weeks since:

Deep River, Conn., July 23, 1856.

since: Beer Rivers, Coun., July 23, 1856.
Mr. Levenworth—Sir: I have been troubled with dandruff or sourf on my head for more than a year, my hair began to come out scurf and hair together. I saw in a New Haven paper about Wood's Hair Restorative sa cure. I called at your store on the la April lest, and purchased one bottle to trand I found to my satisfaction it was than; it removed the scurf and the bair, a to grow, it is now two or three inches?

ng; it removed the scurf and the hair at 10 grow, it is now two or three inchest agth where it was all off. I have greatifith it it wish you to send me two hatcomere by Mr. Post, the hearer of this. I on't know as any of the kind is used in this lace. You may have a market m many botles after it is known here.

Yours with respect, RUFUS PRATT.
